The Agassiz Memorial.

No more fitting monument of the great naturalist so lately passed away can, we think, be reared than that which already exists in the Museum of Comparative Zoology at Cambridge. Begun by him and for years the cherished work of his life, the collection has grown steadily in extent and value until at the present time its renown is world wide. It was founded by him, with that spirit of self-abnegation which characterizes his life, not as an evidence of his own skill and profound learning in the study of Nature, but as a means of education to others, and as a school to be open to all who might desire to possess themselves of the vast store of information enclosed within its walls.

Agassiz labored as a teacher, but not from books nor of the learning of others, but rather as one who, a preceptor in the true sense of the term, points out to his pupils the means by which they may gain knowledge from their infallible responses. There is a particular appropriateness therefore in the plan proposed that the teachers and the pupils of the country should contribute the funds for a suitable memorial in his honor; and the selection of the Museum above referred to as the object of the contributions, which will serve to establish it on a firm, enduring basis, is the most creditable and suitable that could be made. The money, which it is suggested shall be collected on the birthday of Agassiz, May 28, 1874, is to be set apart and known as the Teachers' and Pupils' Fund of the Agassiz Memorial, and remittances are to be made to the Treasurer, Mr. J. M. Barnard, room 4, No. 15 Exchange street, Boston. Every teacher or scholar who desires to add something, however small, and thus take part in the memorial, is invited to do so. We trust that, without doubt, the sum raised will be sufficient for the purpose intended. However great it may be, certainly must fall far short of repaying the debt of gratitude which from the country to Agassiz is so justly due.—Scientific American.

A Narrow Escape.

A valuable team of mules, belonging to Wm. A. Freeman, were killed by a passing train at the Watessing bridge about dusk on Wednesday night. The animals had strayed upon the unfenced property of the Watessing Land Company, and thence upon the railroad track, where they were struck by the train which arrives at 7.16. The engineer, if attentive to his duty, must have seen the danger in ample time to have stopped the train, thus avoiding the grim chance of a terrible accident. But he took the risk, crowded on all steam, and fortunately it turned out all right. The mules were killed, but the train was not. It might have been just the other way. Probably not a soul on the train, unless it might be the sanguine engineer, would take such a chance again for the D. L. & W. R. R. and all its franchises. It is a little singular that this same bridge was the scene of a similarly fortunate escape from disaster three months ago, when the stone bridge was undermined by the stream in the night. The trestle work which now supports the temporary bridge recently put up in its place has a solid but frail, if not insecure appearance. We shall be glad to know of its removal, and the erection of the new iron structure, which, it was reported, was to be erected here.

Mabel Association.

The Third General Meeting of the Scientific Department of the Mabel Association was held at the residence of Mrs. Richards, on the evening of the 15th inst. The paper of the evening, entitled "The Sense of Hearing," was illustrated by diagrams presenting in detail the curious formations that go to make up the inner ear. Following this an extract from a recent letter by Prof. Curtiss was read. This letter was suggested by the temperance agitation, and the dogmatic assertions of the opponents of alcohol, relative to the place that product of fermentation should hold—i. e., whether it is a poison or a food. The Professor simply states the opinion of the scientific mind of the day when he states that alcohol is a true food when used under certain restrictions. The remainder of the evening was passed in a social manner.

Prof. Augustus Watters, favorably known in Newark as an eloquent and of talent and studied culture, appeared before a Bloomfield audience for the first time on Monday evening. He contributed two or three short recitations, the occasion being the public meeting of the Euclean Society. One of these was the humorous passage from Mark Twain's "Roughing It" in which the "partner" of Buck Fanshaw arranges with a clergyman for the deceased miner's funeral. Although the selection was somewhat unrefined in its style of humor, yet, there were few present who could refrain from hearty laughter. Mr. W.'s delineations were irresistible, and his facile transitions from grave to gay were noticeable. He also recited a portion of "Enoch Arden." It was in this that he particularly excelled, making a favorable impression upon an critical audience as is generally met with in a town of the size of Bloomfield.

The anniversary of the Young Men's Christian Union, in this place, was held on Monday evening at the M. E. Church. It was a very successful affair, and the society which was organized in early last, and has since that time enjoyed a most prosperous career, much good having resulted from its organization.

Letter from China.

The Secretary of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society in this place has received the following letter from a lady Missionary at Canton, China, and has requested its publication in our paper:

WOMAN'S F. M. S. BLOOMFIELD:

MY DEAR SISTERS:

The mail goes out to-morrow, and I will try, to-night, to write to the dear ladies of my Society, who have heard so little about me since I bid them adieu in Sept. last.

I can scarcely yet realize that I am indeed in Canton, 10,000 miles away from my precious home and friends, but I often feel it is well the conception of these separations comes to us by degrees. Were it not thus the heart would be crushed under its burden of sorrow. Not that I for a moment would wish to return. Were I obliged to leave the field which I have now entered, I could but look upon it as the greatest affliction which could befall me; nevertheless the absent loved ones are often in my thoughts.

Miss Cronch and myself are enjoying the most perfect health and are fast settling down to what I suppose must be our principal work the next three years, the study of this Chinese language.

It is truly a mountain in our path, whose top we may never hope to reach, but have as yet felt no discouragement. On the contrary were it not for the unmeasurable desire at once to make ourselves practically useful to the women and girls with whom we are daily brought in contact, we should greatly enjoy it.

Hattie's school closed one week ago to-day, for a vacation of a month, and she has gone with Henry into the country for a few days, leaving Miss Cronch and myself in charge of the house. No doubt you would be somewhat amused, were you to see our attempts at being understood by our servants, but with the aid of our valued friend the dictionary, we have thus far succeeded beyond our expectations. Be assured, however, a few words go a long way.

I cannot tell you how often since coming here I have wished it were possible for you to visit this boarding school, in which you have such a warm interest. The girls are all neat, orderly, and industrious. On give a large share of their time to the study of the Scriptures, and it is truly wonderful the amount they will memorize during the year. One pupil who entered the school last February, began the N. W. Testament, and has committed the four gospels, and nearly finished Romans. When you take into consideration the fact that this is a monosyllabic language, every syllable represented by a different character, that the name, tone, and meaning of each must be remembered, also that these girls usually have no knowledge of books whatever when they enter the school, you can but conclude this to be no light task. In this land, where there is no security that they will be allowed to retain a copy of the Bible when they leave, the missionaries feel it best that they should give all the time possible to the study of the Scriptures while they have the opportunity.

They do all their studying aloud, and we can sometimes hear the murmur of sound even in the house, and when giving a recitation invariably stand with the back to the teacher, their way of manifesting respect. Sister Hattie keeps a record of their deportment and progress in study, and at the end of the year issues their grades, giving prizes to those who have made the greatest advancement. They are by no means without ambition, and this has proved quite an incentive to study. Their teacher has during the last term suffered more or less from sickness, but when she was confined to her room, these girls would at the proper hour resort to the schoolroom, and study faithfully the entire day.

Of the 22 enrolled, 5 have during the year joined the church, and my sister hopes several others have become Christians. Of the class who finish next year the first to be sent out, are, we trust, safe in the field, with the exception of one who is not without interest. Her father is opposed to her having anything to do with this new religion, and should she own the Saviour as her Redeemer, her path would not be a thornless one. We can but pray that she may take up the cross, though it be heavy to bear. Will you not very often remember her at the throne of grace during the present year? You have no idea how much we all depend upon the prayers of our sisters at home, nor what a strength they are to the toiling ones here amid this heathen darkness. The last year has been one of great blessing for Canton. Forty-eight have been connected with the church within twelve months. I can but think this great joy which has come to the band here is due in a large measure to those earnest pleadings which have gone up for the Mission from the loved societies in America. Do not cease to pray for us, for those prayers are our priceless treasure. I must not fail to tell you how very much we enjoyed our meetings here during the first week of January. The missionaries of the different denominations represented, united in the exercises, meeting at private houses, and we had most delightful seasons together. The following Sabbath was communion, and I think thirteen connected with the church. Not less than one hundred and fifty women were present, whereas two years ago not one half dozen could have been induced to enter the church, at least that was the expressed opinion of one of the missionaries present. You can doubt imagine that it is a great trial for your correspondent to feel that for a long time her month must be closed to this people who are perishing for the bread of life. It would touch your hearts.

I am sure if you could hear the earnestness with which the Christian girls and women pray for us, who have so lately arrived, that the Holy Spirit would bless us very soon to be able to teach their people. Perhaps it would be a pleasure to you to know that the two girls supported by your (my I not say our?) society were the first in school to give their hearts to the Saviour. I can but feel especially drawn to them, though I love them all very much. It is growing late and I must close. The next time I write I will try to fulfill my promise, in reference to the women's department. I thought it better to write those particulars when Sister Hattie was at home. With very much love to each and all, I am very affectionately, yours,

M. E. NOYES.

The Euclean Society.

This Society held a public meeting on Monday evening which was the means of attracting a much larger audience than usually assembled on such occasions. The exercises passed off in a most satisfactory manner, from the modest criticism by Mr. Roband to the reading, by Mr. Maxfield, of the Society Journal, through which ran a vein of dry humor which kept up an interest to the end. Mr. Jas. Chalmers read an essay, eulogistic of the late Senator Sumner. It was a very able paper. In it the writer not only paid a deserved tribute to an illustrious statesman, but also took occasion to animadvert, to some extent, upon the political faults and failings of the day and hour.

In a debate involving the greatest development of the faculty of imagination in man or woman, several gentlemen took part, and the arguments on both sides were well sustained. Messrs. Garbrand and Chalmers argued in the affirmative, and Mr. Foulke very ably espoused the ladies' side. The decision was rendered in favor of the affirmative.

Rev. J. G. Bartholomew, D. D., late pastor of the Church of the Redeemer, in Newark, died at his residence on Tuesday, having been an invalid for some months. The deceased was esteemed as one of the ablest clergymen in the Universalist church. He was installed as pastor of the above named church a little over one year ago. On the last Sunday but one that he preached he told his congregation the story of two leaves on a tree near his study window, which had survived the storms of Autumn and Winter. A few days previously one of them had fallen, and at the time he learned of the death of a near relative—the last of his family but himself. The other leaf, he added with solemn emphasis, he need not tell his people would soon fall. His funeral is to take place in his church on Broad street, Newark, at two o'clock Friday next. It is expected that Dr. Chapin will be present.

At a late meeting of the East Orange Township Committee, the Committee on Officers and Salaries reported in favor of the payment of the following salaries for the ensuing year: Collector of Taxes, 30 cents per name for each tax collected; Auditor, (whose duties require him to be present at the Town Council sessions every Monday afternoon and evening), $150; Town Counsel, $400; Treasurer, $250; Bookkeeper, $250; Township Clerk, $250; Overseer of the Poor, $250; Overseer of Highways, $3 per day for each day's work actually performed; Lump Inspector, $20 per month, January, $1.50 per week. A resolution was adopted to the effect that the Township Committee will hold the collector responsible for uncollected taxes unless he enforces the law by levying upon the goods of delinquents.

People in the country are just now becoming interested in their farm and garden operations, and very naturally look to the newspaper to ascertain the best place at which to purchase tools, seeds, fertilizers, etc. Mr. John A. Miller, at the old stand, 449 Broad Street, Newark, has the most extensive establishment of the kind in this vicinity. All kinds of implements, and particularly farm machinery of the most approved construction, can be found there, together with smaller articles, lawn mowers, rustic work, fertilizers, fresh and reliable farm, garden and flower seeds.

The first charter election in the new city of Bloomfield passed off quietly on Tuesday last. There were four tickets out, the Republican, the Citizen's, the Citizen's Union, and the No Party Ticket. The result was the election of a mixed ticket. The result was Holmes was elected Mayor, notwithstanding he had declined to be a candidate. John E. Taylor was elected Councilman-at-Large, Theo. Sanford Recorder, James Scott and W. E. Blewett Chosen Freeholders. A great many citizens, dissatisfied with the charter, refused to vote. In the Second Ward, but 34 votes were polled, and in the Third, but 34. The entire city polled a vote of only 404.

At a meeting of the Essex Road Board, held on Monday, the Engineer was directed to advertise for proposals to grade sections one and three of Ridgewood avenue. Section one is that portion West of Bloomfield avenue. The grading of section two, from Bloomfield avenue to Bay avenue, was completed last summer.

A meeting of the Town Committee was held on Friday last, at which no business of much consequence was transacted. The following persons were appointed Pound Keepers: George W. Thompson, Abram Garbrand, A. F. Harvey, John Ferguson, Samuel S. Baldwin.

Our people will soon be busy in their gardens. Now is the time for transplanting grape vines, fruit trees and shrubbery of all kinds. The nurseries of John Rassbach is the place where you can get them.

An artist from the New York Graphic has been engaged in making sketches in Newark. The pictures, it is said, will appear in next Wednesday's Graphic.

The occasion of "Fifteenth Amendment Day" caused a general exodus of colored people from this place to Newark on Wednesday.

A Parish Meeting of the First Presbyterian Church is called for this (Friday) evening in the Lecture Room.

CRYSTAL SPRING ICE!

WESLEY B. CORBY, Proprietor.

The Crystal Spring that gently flows
Through flowery banks of evergreen,
Like life it tells us to pursue
A course like this—so pure, serene.

SUMMER IDYLS.

The poet may write of the wine's rosy cup,
And of its bright virtues may sing,
But sweeter and cooler is the goblet when filled
With Ice from the Crystal Spring.

The winter is past and the bright sunny days
Soon the roses and violets will bring
And then in our homes the goblet will fill
With Ice from the Crystal Spring.

Success to the cup that always does cheer,
And sweet peace and contentment does bring.
For if earth's joys are gifts there is nothing so pure
As Ice from the Crystal Spring.

The above CRYSTAL ICE which gave such solid satisfaction to my patrons, will be furnished by me as usual. Orders left at my office, in J. W. Lees' store, Cor. of
